Hello & Thank you!

First of all.. thank you so much for even considering me to be part of this amazing chapter in your life. Whether you're growing your family, welcoming a new little one, celebrating a milestone, or just wanting to freeze time with the people you love most—I'm truly honored you're here and thinking about working with me.

I totally get how overwhelming it can be choosing a photographer these days. There are so many options out there, and it's such a personal decision. So really, thank you for being here.

A little about me—I've been doing photography professionally since 2005 (but honestly, it started way before then). I was that quirky teen who took pictures of everything—literally everything. My camera has been my comfort zone for as long as I can remember. I know it like the back of my hand, and I love chasing light, exploring beautiful outdoor spots, and capturing real, honest moments.

On a more personal note—I'm ADHD and on the spectrum, so I tend to be socially awkward, super literal, and definitely not a natural networker. But give me a camera, and it's like something clicks. Photography gives me a way to connect—heart to heart—in a way words sometimes can't. It's more than just taking pretty pictures for me. It's about finding those real, in-between moments and creating something that feels deeply meaningful.

So if you're looking for someone who will show up with her whole heart and see the beauty in your everyday magic—I just might be your girl. 🧡
